Since I just inserted a review topic, I thought I would do a second one at the same point. Now not in the next topic, but in the next section, you will encounter some examples where I use the ternary operator instead of a traditional if statement. If you are unfamiliar with this operator, it is a great one to learn as it can reduce the amount of code you need to enter.

You can review the ternary operator with this YouTube tutorial: Understanding the Ternary Operator.